Mounds O' Paper!

All of us are in the wrong business . . . never a day goes by that regardless of the industry the person I'm talking to is in, I hear muttered words of frustration about the mountain-sized mound of time wasting, cost escalating, senseless regulatory paperwork they face each day!

It seems that after the accounting fiascos of 2002 and even prior to the tragedies of September 11th . . . the empire building, silo-encased bureaucrats have been busy supposedly protecting all of us.

I don't buy that for one minute! Certainly rules are important, but let's ensure that they actually serve a constructive purpose, other than to create self-worth and mounds of paper for a few social outcasts. For a while, they had us impressed, but now for the most part, they just crank out 'stuff'. Some are brilliant and truly add value and purpose, but unfortunately most don't measure up.

All of these mounds of paper, the man-hours that go into processing it, and of course, the costs associated with this 'make work mentality' will eventually lead to an outcry of . . . no more!

Maybe it will also result in an increase in paper pushing bureaucrat's unemployment . . .

How long it will take for the masses to cry out, "enough is enough!?"? I don't know, but until then, being in the paper & pulp business is where we should all be.

That's my opinion anyways!

Cheers,

Victor
